EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

THE Cook county Insane Asylum, near Chicago, is in trouble.

SUICIDES are said to average six a day in the United States.

RANDALL'S Democratic platform doesn't meet with much favor.

THE Williamsport Sunday Breakfast Table continues to rave about the Danville Insane Asylum.

POLK will have ample time to ruminate over his bad deeds. A great deal of thinking can be done in twenty years.

AND now comes ex-Attorney General Lear, who says that he is satisfied with the Republican ticket and will give it his support.

SAMUEL J. TILDEN will attempt to swim the Niagara whirlpool to prove his ability to endure four years in the White House.

POSTMASTER GENERAL GRESHAM is making himself solid with the newspapers by ordering that postal clerks shall not read other people's papers.

THE present session of the State Legislature will probably pass into history as an X-traordinary legislative episode, since an X and a ten-dollar bill are colloquially convertible terms.

LORD CHIEF JUSTICE COLERIDGE, of England, who will visit New York the last of next month, will be the guest of E. F. Sheperd, son-in-law of W. H. Vanderbilt. Lord Coleridge will pay a special visit to William M. Evarts at Windsor, Vt.

WHO said the present was a cheap Legislature? On the contrary it endears itself to the people at the cost of ten dollars per day for each member and appears to be determined to continue to do so as long as there is a dollar in the State Treasury.

MR. GLADSTONE is not a man who can easily be downed. The conservatives thought they saw a splendid opportunity to give him a blow anent his negotiations with M. de Lesseps concerning the new Suez canal, but the premier was too shrewd for them and the vote which was to condemn him resulted in an indorsement by one hundred majority.

EX-GOVERNOR POLLOCK has been retired from the naval office in Philadelphia, and as he is well advanced in years, it is probably the last of his official career. His first office was that of district attorney of Northumberland county in 1835. He was elected to Congress in 1844, and re-elected. In 1850 he was judge of the eighth judicial district, and in 1854 elected Governor of the State. He was a member of the so-called Union conference which met just before the war, to try to compromise so as to avoid a resort to arms. He was Director of the Mint from 1861 to 1866, when he resigned, but was re-appointed in 1869 with the title of superintendent. He was succeeded by J. Ross Snowden, and appointed naval officer in place of John A. Hiestand. He has now been succeeded by F. H. Nevin of the Philadelphia Evening News. It will be seen that Mr. Pollock has spent the best part of forty-eight years in office, but has probably now retired finally.

Corporate Nonsense.

The strike of telegraph operators continues and has changed very little within the past week. one company making important concessions to operatives and others remaining firm. We much regret that any newspapers can lend themselves to endorse the stand of of the Western Union telegraph company against the strikers, but there are many of both political parties and of no political party that do so and attempt to teach doctrines of government that are pernicious and unwise. The strikes necessarily obstruct business, and because of this these teachers of wisdom (?) would make the act of striking unlawful—a crime—as if a laborer did not have the right to fix his own estimate on the value of his services, and as if the prosperous companies, in their greed for increased wealth, were not equally responsible for such obstruction! It is not often that a Democratic paper has anything of value to say on such a subject, but the Williamsport Times forms an agreeable exception, which induces us to quote its remarks as follows: To the proposition that suspension of service to the public by railroad and telegraph corporations ought to be made a legal impossibility, assent may readily be given. But the object of legislation should be railroad and telegraph companies, not their employes. These corporations, over and above all other corporations, and over and above all individuals, owe the public service. They are not only created by the public, but they are clothed with the public sovereignty so far as may be necessary for the exercise of their functions; are empowered to enter upon and by virtue of the sovereignty of the state condemn and appropriate to their uses the private property of the citizen; are permitted to use the public highways for their structures and traffic; and are in other ways vested with rights and given privileges by the public that are not permitted to individuals or to the general run of corporations for manufacturing, mechanical, and other industrial purposes. Human labor and skill are marketable elements that enter into the account of their construction and operation, and that they procure just as they procure any other marketable elements that enter into the account of their construction and operation. The prices of that skill and that labor are, and only can be, regulated by the law of supply and demand. The owners of that labor and that skill have as good a right to dictate their prices as the owners of rails and ties, wires and poles, have to dictate the prices of those commodities; if there be any difference, a better right. Suppose the owners of rails and ties, and wires and poles having command of the market, should advance their prices fifty, or one hundred per cent., and immediate supplies of those commodities were necessary to the service of the public by railroad and telegraph corporations; would a suspension of service on account of such advance be tolerated for a moment? Would any one propose, by enactment of law, to compel the owners of rails and ties, wires and poles, to sell those commodities at the prices of the corporations needing them, or at prices arbitrarily fixed by statute? No merit of the controversy between the Western Union telegraph company and its employes can relieve the former of its obligations to serve the public, let labor and skill cost what they may. That corporation has for years been "striking," and is to day "striking," the public, by extorting enormous charges for services to pay dividends upon a fictitious capital bloated with wind and water. Whether it pays more or less for labor and skill, as for wires and poles, the money comes not out of the pockets of Jay Gould and his fellow corporationists and monopolists, but out of the public. The case is precisely parallel with that of the railroads which a year ago refused to perform the service due from them to the public because the freight handlers combined and demanded a few cents a day more for their labor during the heated term—a just and righteous demand, and refused to work because their price was not paid. The courts have since passed upon that case and decided that the cost of labor is no more a justification for a railroad corporation's failure to perform its duty as a common carrier, than the cost of putty. That is and always will be good law, as it is good common sense.

The Trade Dollar Disposed Of.

Secretary Folger has disposed of the question of the trade dollar, so far as the executive relations of the present Administration to it are concerned, and indeed, in the absence of legislation on the subject by Congress, the matter may be regarded as finally dismissed. On the 6th of July the New York Evening Post published a letter from Mr. James C. Hallock, Jr., of Brooklyn, reviewing the legislative history of the trade dollar, contending that it was entitled to as much monetary consideration as the standard silver dollar, which contains seven grains and a half less bullion, and concluding that "the President of the United States has ample authority" to direct the Treasurer and Assistant Treasurers "to receive the trade dollars the same as the standard silver dollars, and, when so requested, to exchange them for silver certificates." Secretary Folger, in reply to Mr. Hallock, who forwarded to him a copy of the letter written by ex-Secretary Sherman, which is of interest, not because the facts and opinions which it presents are new or unfamiliar, but because it states very clearly the view of the trade dollar which has always prevailed in the Treasury and in Congress. Mr. Sherman shows that the coins at once went out of the country, and that it was never expected that they would go anywhere else; that when, upon the depreciation of silver, bullion dealers found it profitable to put trade dollars—which by classification with other silver coins had been made a legal tender to the amount of five dollars—in circulation on the Pacific coast, Mr. Randall introduced in the House of Representatives and Mr. Cox afterward reported a bill taking away the legal-tender quality, which was passed by both branches of Congress without any objection whatever that up to this time the trade dollar had not circulated outside of the Pacific States, because it "cost more than a paper-currency dollar," but when upon the resumption of specie payments the paper dollars depreciated relatively, the bullion dealers found profit in putting the latter in circulation in this part of the country. Thus, clearly, the Government had washed its hands of the trade dollar; had thoroughly discredited it as lawful money; had given notice in every possible way that it was not among the legal coins of the United States, long before the embarrassment now complained of began to be felt.

THE Tribune fears that those virtuous Democrats, who go into spasms about once a week over the ancient report that Mr. S. W. Dorsey is alleged to have spent $30,000 in the Republican campaign in Indiana in 1880, will be shocked to learn that Judge Hoadly has offered to subscribe $80,000 for the Ohio Democratic campaign fund, provided the remainder of the candidates on the ticket will raise $100,000 for the same purpose. To be sure, one of Judge Hoadly's chief qualifications as a candidate lies in his long purse. But nobody has supposed that he would make so public an exhibition of his wickedness as this. Dorsey's reputed expenditure in Indiana was a mere bagatelle compared with the enormous electioneering fund which the honesty Hoadly proposes to raise. What? One hundred and eighty thousand dollars to corrupt the moral and religious citizens of Ohio?

Familiar Platform Literature.

We invite the attention of our readers to the New York Evening Post's "analysis" of the platform adopted by the Democrats at the Harrisburg convention. It will be found decidedly interesting reading:

The Pennsylvania Democratic platform is one of those fine old productions which the leaders of the party never tire in turning out. We are told that ex-Speaker Randall passed a sleepless night in its construction, and we must admit that if his labors were directed mainly to the exclusion of all save the most venerable platitudes of political declaration, he succeeded perfectly. At the outset we are confronted with the assertion that the Democracy of Pennsylvania still believe in a "strict construction and rigid enforcement of the Constitution;" that they uphold the sanctity of personal liberty, the security of private property, and the rights of local self government." As every man, woman, and child in the country occupies a similar position, these may be regarded as safe principles. Immediately after these follows the most novel utterance of the whole platform, and the only one which could by any possibility come within the category of what Judge Hoadly calls "new and living." Speaking for the Democrats of Pennsylvania, Mr. Randall says: "They believe in that genuine and deep-reaching civil-service reform which consists in the election to office of honest, intelligent, capable and courageous public servants who will faithfully administer their trust, and who will be held to strict accountability for such a discharge of it, and who will redeem and purge the departments of the general Government from that corruption and fraud with which they have been permeated under Republican rule, and which that party has shown itself unable and unwilling to eradicate."

The larger part of Mr. Randall's sleepless night was undoubtedly spent in the construction of that gem. The difficulties of the situation are familiar to all men. The problem was to declare for civil service reform, but at the same time show that there could be no true reform which did not turn all the offices over to the Democrats. That eminent Democratic reformer, Judge Black, has grappled with this problem, but he put the point so bluntly that his party has been shy of embodying it in its platform literature. He said he was in favor of civil-service reform and a fixed tenure, but he did not believe the tenure should go into effect until all the offices had been filled with Democrats. Mr. Randall has put the point more delicately. He calls it a "genuine and deep-reaching reform," a "redeeming and purging" of the departments of the general Government. He had in mind Judge Hoadly's unfortunate experience in Ohio. The Judge was known to have been a civil-service reformer before he was nominated, and so, when he declared his faith in a new Democracy, the old Democracy understood him to mean that he was opposed to the grand old Democratic principle, "to the victor belongs the spoils." Their alarm was communicated to the Judge, and he explained that what he meant by "new" was that offices of Ohio should be "newly" filled with Democrats. His solution of the problem was not regarded as especially happy, and it may be that Mr. Randall's will not be more successful.

WE see it charged every day by anti-protection writers that the necessary effect of protective tariff is to create great fortunes for a few monopolists at the expense of the poorly-paid labor of the mass of the people, and that so marked has been the effect of the operation of this law that manufacturing monopolists control the legislation and administration of the United States Government in their own selfish interests. If all this be true, there must be a concentration of much wealth in the hands of a few great manufacturers. But who are they? Where are these "great monopolistic manufacturing fortunes wrung from the toil of millions?" We saw the other day a list of the great fortunes of the United States, those running up into scores of millions, but among them there was not one made in the manufacture of articles protected by tariff. The Goulds, Vanderbilts, Astors, Mills, Crockers, Mackays, Stewarts, and the scores of others on the list, have all amassed their wealth by speculation, railroad building, fortunate mining or strict commerce. Stewart, it is true, was interested in some manufactures, but as subsidary and subordinate to his great business as a trader, a bazar keeper on a monster scale. The fortunes most gigantic in extent, and most quickly gained, have been for the most part acquired in great speculations and the control of transportation lines operated under public franchises—monopolies in a fair sense of the term.

THE seven-weeks effort of the New Hamphire legislature to elect a Senator terminated on Thursday morning in the choice of Austin F. Pike of Franklin. The decisive ballot stood thus: Pike, 181; Bingham 112; Marston, 19; Patterson, Stevens and Ladd 1 each. The new Senator, Hon. Austin F. Pike, was born in Hebron, N. H., Oct. 16, 1819, and was educated in the schools of that town and the Plymouth and Newbury, Vt, academies. He read law in Franklin with the Hon. George A. Nesmith, and, upon being admitted to the bar, in July, 1845, located in that town, where he has since been engaged in the active practice of his profession. He ranks as one of the ablest lawyers of the State. He represented Franklin in the Legislature in 1845, 1851, 1852, and 1866, having been Speaker the last two years, and was President of that body last year. He was a delegate to the first Republican National Convention at Philadelphia in 1856, at which John C. Fremont was nominated for President, and was a member of the Forty-third Congress.

THE story comes from Chicago that a company has been formed in that city for the purpose of transporting freight and passengers through the air. A certificate for incorporation has been filled in the secretary of state's office under the title of the "Aerial Navigation Company of Chicago." The concern has a capital stock of two million dollars. It is asserted that the machines to be manufactured by this company are a perfection of the one tested a number of years ago, which, at the time, attracted wide-spread attention. Immediately steps are to be taken for the manufacture of a monster machine of great power and capacity, and if the inventors are not over enthusiastic it will be but a few months before the scientific and inventive world will be electrified by announcement of attained perfection in aerial navigation. However it may end, the announcement will be patiently awaited. A grand excursion by air from Chicago to St. Louis would be something more than remarkable.

MR. JAMES SWANK, secretary of the American iron and steel association, is of the opinion there will be no more tumble in the pig iron this year on account of excessive production. Reports from the various furnaces show that the production for the first half of the year was 2,352,019 gross tons, or only 40,357 tons more than one half of the whole production during the last year. This was accomplished with the aid of many furnaces which are now out of blast, so that it is apparent that the six months beginning with July will show a large decrease of production.

THE Democratic ticket will not be heard of after November.

SWEET COUNTRY COUSINS.

BY J. P. STELLE.

How dear to the heart are the sweet country cousins,
When dog-days of summer begin to draw near;
When bricks have grown hot, and when sunstrokes by dozens
Fill body with anguish and bosom with fear!
The green waving fields, the sweet-smelling breezes,
The 'scaping from turmoil to quiet and calm,
The rich creamy milk which the ready hand seizes,
And e'en the brown cousins who live on the farm;
The plain country cousins, the uncultured cousins,
The sweet country cousins who live on the farm!

The sweet country cousins! O, aren't they a treasure?
How handy to love at the vacation time;
And paying one's board is too costly pleasure,
When all can be had without spending a dime.
How pleasant to live on rich cream and ripe berries,
Fresh golden-hued butter, and cakes light and warm;
Free use of horses, the carts and the wherries,
Of sweet country cousins who live on the farm!
The plain country cousins, the uncultivated cousins,
The sweet country cousins who live on the farm!

How dear are sweet country cousins in summer!
How fragrant the meadow, romantic the down!
But straightway your faces begin to grow grummer
At thoughts of their visit next winter in town;
The theatre, the concert, the lecture, the money
Expended in tickets!—the thought gives a qualm;
The sequel of summer is not quite so funny—
Why don't the sweet cousins remain on their farm?
The brown-visaged cousins, the great awkward cousins,
The clod-hopper cousins should stay on their farm!

A TWILIGHT MEMORY.

At fall of night, when shadows gray
Enclose the feet of fading day,

Or on the far horizon's rim,
The rain-clouds gather vast and dim,

From some vague coast of memory
A childhood scene returns to me.

I see my mother, sweet and fair,
Her gentle face 'neath shining hair.

I see myself, her little one,
With pensive looks, when day is done.

Uncertain what the day may bring,
I nestle 'neath my mother's wing;

And even there, by fears possessed,
My trembling heart is not at rest.

A tender voice, I hear it yet,
Bids: "Light the lamps for Margaret."

And swift the cheery rays are poured
O'er curtained room and smiling board.

However thick the shadows meet
To-day around my weary feet.

No mother's presence at my side
Is strong to comfort, bless and guide.

The dear one, lifted out of sight,
Dwells evermore in Love's own light;

But tones my heart can ne'er forget,
Above me sound in blessings yet;

And one by one, like stars that rise
Serene amid the steadfast skies,

The lamps of faith their glow divine
Diffuse around this life of mine.

Our Story Teller.

Never Despair.

Richard Irwin toiled slowly and wearily up the two flights of stairs which led to his poor abode, whose scanty furniture had grown still more scanty as want and poverty pressed more and more hardly upon him.

But poor as it was, everything was as neat as his pretty wife Mary's busy hands could make it, who turned upon him the same brave, cheerful smile with which she always welcomed him, though her heart sank as she saw the gloom which shrouded his face.

"It's no use, Mary," he said, sinking down into a chair. "I've walked the streets all the morning, and there is no work to be had; men are discharging old hands instead of taking new. I've had no work for over three months now, with the exception of an odd job or so. Winter is coming on; all my hardly earned savings are gone; and what is to become of us is more than I know!"

"It is always darkest before the dawn, Richard."

"That's what you have been saying for a long time," was the gloomy response, "but a night keeps growing darker. I wouldn't care so much if it wasn't for you and the baby; but you see you are growing so pale and so hollow eyed, and to know that Freddie is neither comfortably fed or clothed, drives me almost wild."

The young wife laid her hand softly upon the bowed head of the speaker.

"God is good, my husband. He will not forsake those who put their trust in Him, and do the best they can."

"I sometimes doubt whether he cares much for what is done here. It don't look as if he did. There is Tom Stephens, who has got rich through fraud and extortion. As I was going through the market on my way home I saw him buying a turkey for to-morrow—for to-morrow is Thanksgiving day—that is, for some people, I don't know what we have to be thankful for!"

Mrs. Irwin's chief comfort in these dark days had been her firm belief in the wisdom and goodness of God, and it cost her not a little effort to repress the eager protest that arose to her lips. But she was a wise little woman, who knew when to speak and when to be silent.

"I know what I have most reason to be thankful for," she said, touching her lips lightly to his forehead; "that I am the happy wife of a man who never gave me occasion to blush for him or regret the day that made me his.

Lifting his head Mr. Irwin looked eagerly into these sweetly serious eyes.

"Is this really so, Mary? I have feared of late that it was a selfish thing in me to take you from a home of ease and comfort to share my hard, toilsome life. You had many suitors. If, knowing all that you do now, you had your choice to make again, would it be the same.

"It would be the same. You little know the heart of your wife, Richard, if you think I have a shadow of regret. I only wish I could help you in some way."

"You do help me! If it were not for your love, and all it gives me, heart and strength would utterly fail."

"See what a nice dinner I have for you," said Mrs. Irwin, pointing to some covered dishes upon the hearth. "I don't believe you can guess where I got it?"

"Begged it, perhaps," was the bitter response.

"No, indeed! we haven't got to that yet, and, please God, we never will. We had only a crust of bread left from breakfast, and that I moistened with milk for Freddie. As I was thinking of it, and feeling troubled at the prospect of having no dinner for you on your return, Mrs. Allen's little girl tapped at the door, saying that her mother hoped I'd excuse her for sending some meat and vegetables, as she had more than she wanted for dinner. Mrs. Allen is the woman who has the rooms under us and with whose sick baby I watched one night last week.

The savory dishes that Mrs. Irwin placed upon the neatly-spread table gave forth a very grateful odor to the hungry man, who, with all the rest of his discomforts, was faint for want of food.

It may be a humiliating admission for them to make, but it is, nevertheless, true, that the world looks very different to most men after and before dinner, and Mr. Irwin arose from the table with more courage for the sharp conflict, the inevitable hardships that the majority of people have to endure in one form or another.

"See how nicely I have mended your coat," said Mrs. Irwin, holding the article alluded to up before her husband. "I want to go to church in the morning. You will go, too, won't you?"

Mr. Irwin had his hat in his hand preparatory to going out again on his almost hopeless errand.

"What for?"

The voice was very low and reverent that said:

"To render thanks to the Lord for all his mercies."

"Poor little woman! For these thin, faded garments, these bare walls, and scarcely food enough to keep soul and body together?"

"No, Richard. For this, that health and strength are continued to us; that while so many households have been made desolate in our land, we are spared to each other."

Mr. Irwin felt his eyes moisten as he descended the stairs, though he did not feel the full significance of these words until a few hours later.

"Mary is a good woman," he thought; "the best wife in the world! I wish I could feel as she does about these things, but I can't."

As he entered a store, whose proprietor had sometimes employed him in doing odd jobs about it, he was accosted by a pleasant looking elderly man, who addressed him thus:

"Is your name Irwin?"

"Yes, sir."

"You worked at one time for the Waterville sewing machine company?"

"Yes, sir, I worked for the company until they failed, about a year ago."

"It did not fail, exactly," said the stranger with a smile, "it suspended. It has gone into operation again. My son wrote me to try to hunt you up. He is in want of a faithful, competent man to act as foreman. Would you like the place?"

Mr. Irwin felt a choking sensation in his throat, and his voice was a little husky, as he said:

"I should, very much. I have a dependent family, and have been out of steady work for some months."

Those keen eyes took a rapid survey of the speaker's worn and shabby garments.

"My son writes that there is something due you on your old account. Let me see." Here the speaker referred to a letter which he took from his pocket. "Seventy-five dollars! I think I have the amount with me, and if you will give me a receipt I will make it square with you."

It was a long time since Mr. Irwin had had a sum like this at his disposal, and he could hardly realize his good fortune, even when the roll of bills was in his hand.

His first recollected thought was of his dear, patient wife. "Poor Mary, how glad she will be to know of this!" he said to himself, as he went down the steps into the street, putting his hand in his breast pocket to make sure it was not a myth—the money he had placed there, as well as the bright prospects that had so suddenly opened before him.

As he hurried along, eager to tell her the good news, and impatient at every obstacle in his way, he saw a dense cloud of smoke in the quarter where he lived. As he drew near he saw a crowd of people following some ghastly thing that was being borne past him to the station.

"What is it?" he inquired of a bystander.

"A woman burnt to death in a tenement house on Front street."

Front street! That was where he lived, and with quickened step and sinking heart he rushed on. His worst fears were realized. The building he had left a few minutes before was a mass of smoking ruins, whose numerous tenants were huddled out upon the sidewalk before the few things they were able to snatch from the flames, but among whom his eyes sought vainly for those that he most wished to see.

Rushing up to one of the women, he seized her almost rudely by the arm.

"Mrs. Allen, where is my wife?"

Putting down the child she was holding, the woman arose and stared wildly around.

"I have not seen her. The Lord be good to us! It couldn't be her they took away so burned and blackened that her own mother wouldn't know her."

For a moment Mr. Irwin stood motionless, struggling with the sickening horror that palsied limb and brain. Then, as he remembered the ghastly spectacle he had met, pushing through the crowd, he turned his tottering steps in the direction in which he had seen it borne.

In the shadow of such a terrible bereavement how light seemed every other trial, how black the ingratitude that had made him unthankful for the rich treasure of love that had been his! What cared he for the opportunities thrown open to him? How poor and empty seemed all that he had hoped to do and win now that she was gone whose presence had made his lowly abode such a heaven of peace and rest!

"Merciful Father! take all else, but spare my wife and child!" was the cry that went up from his tortured soul, as the officer turned the key of the room where the dead lay.

Upon a rude table, their faces charred and blackened beyond recognition, were the unfortunate mother and child, awaiting identification.

"Oh! Mary!—oh! my boy!—can this be you?" groaned the wretched man, as he turned his shuddering gaze upon them.

Here Mr. Irwin felt a light touch upon his arm.

"Richard!"

Turning he saw his wife with their child in her arms just back of him.

The revulsion, from the extremes of grief and despair to this blessed reality, was too strong, and had it not been for the officer who was standing by, he would have fallen to the floor.

It seems that Mrs. Irwin, who had barely time to escape with her life, had taken refuge in a house opposite. She had seen her husband rush past on his way to the station, and divining his errand followed as quickly as possible.

The following day was truly "Thanksgiving Day" to both; and not alone for the material blessings that surrounded them.

And through all the prosperous years that followed, years that whitened their hair and knit their hearts more closely together, never did Mr. Irwin omit, on that day, to refer to this eventful season of his life, and fail to render most hearty thanks to the Giver of all good, for this crowning proof of his goodness, "that they were spared to each other."

The White House.

Advantage is being taken of the absence of the President to make some important improvements at the White House. There are a number of sewer and gas pipes in the building that have been there since gas lighting and house drainage have been known to man. Then there is an ice house in the area, at the northwest corner, which appears to have been about contemporaneous with the earliest use of ice for domestic preservative purpose. The old gas pipes in the basement, through which the alleged illuminating vapor can scarcely make its way for obstructions, are to be replaced by new glazed conductors. A new 12 inch beak or clay pipe sewer in the north and west areas is to give way to a modern preserving chamber, with slate floor and the most improved methods of refrigeration and ventilation.

The usual annual repairs are being made to the conservatories, only a more extensive renovation than customary is contemplated. The redecoration of the east room ceiling is an unknown quantity, the modern artist declining to reveal the mysteries of his design to the outer world before it is in a more completed condition. The scaffolding has been erected and the rest of the room protected from possible injury and nothing now stops the way but the evolution of a fitting scheme of fresco art work. The deep cornice now finished in white and gold is to be included in the general plan and will be tinted to match the surface of the ceiling.

A pretty woman in a hardware store announced that she wanted a masher, when all the clerks made a rush toward her, but retired demolished when she calmly added "a potato masher."

An impetuous young man has started the story that some ice cream is now made from white clay; but the girls are not bound to believe everything they hear.

If you really wish to improve you may use the old saw for a prayer: God send me a friend that may tell me my faults; i not an enemy, and to be sure he will.

An amorous swain who is courting a girl and trying to please the old man at the same time is said to be very par tickler in his attentions.

NIAGARA FALLS.

First-Class Excursion to One of the Seven Wonders—Marvelous Rates.

The Penn'a R. R. Co. in obedience to what would appear to be public demand, is completing arrangements to run an excursion train to Watkins Glen and Niagara Falls on August 21. A number of people at Bellefonte and at Lock Haven have been wanting an excursion of this kind, and here is a good opportunity, and at such rates as are truly astonishing. A special train will start at Harrisburg, and bring the passengers from the east to Williamsport. Passengers from Lock Haven, Renovo and other points will go to Williamsport on Day express, which leaves Renovo at 10:05, and Lock Haven at 11:15. Excursionists from Bellefonte and vicinity will leave there on B. E. V. mail at 10 a. m. and go to Williamsport, changing at Lock Haven. Upon reaching Williamsport they will leave there in a special train of elegant cars at 12:40 p. m., arriving at Watkins at 4:15 p. m. This will give ample time to see the wonderful Watkins Glen and its picturesque points of interest. The excursionists will remain over night at Watkins, and at 8:30 Wednesday morning take a special boat pass over Seneca Lake to Geneva, a distance of 35 miles, thence to Niagara Falls via. New York Central and Hudson River R. R., passing the celebrated Clifton Springs en route. If you prefer to go all the way by rail, you can go from Watkins to Canandaigua instead of going by way of Seneca Lake to Geneva. The return trip will be made only by the last route mentioned, so that those who who wish a delightful ride on a beautiful and placid sheet of water had better go from Watkins to Geneva by lake. The special excursion train will arrive at Niagara at 5 10 p. m., thus giving excursionists the inestimable pleasure of seeing the wonderful falls and other points of interest illuminated by the electric light. This is a very grand sight, and alone worth half the cost of the trip. The excursionists will rest at Niagara all night, devote Thursday to sight seeing, and leave Niagara at 2.15 p. m., reaching Williamsport at 12.15 midnight. If a sufficient number go from Lock Haven, Renoyo, Bellefonte and their surroundings, a special train will bring them to Lock Haven the same night. All this from Bellefonte, for only $7.20 car fare.

The company is also getting up a ticket which will entitle the bearer to supper, lodging and breakfast at the Glen Mountain House, Watkins Glen, admission to the Glen, dinner on board the boat between Watkins and Geneva, supper, lodging, breakfast and dinner at Niagara at either the Cataract or International Hotels (both first class), and admission to all places of interest. The cost of this ticket will not exceed $7 00 so that the whole trip need cost no one more than $14.20 There will doubtless be some who will prefer to entertain themselves, and for the benefit of these, arrangments are being made for reduced rates at the hotels at Watkins and Niagara, and also for carriage hire, admission to places of interest, &., so that persons will be outside of the fare if they do not desire to buy a ticket for entertainment. The tickets will be good to Watkins only on the special train from Williamsport, but from Watkins they will be good at any time within 10 days from the date of issue, to stop off at intermediate places. Therefore, from Watkins to Niagara and back home the journey can be made by easy stages any time inside of ten days.

The scenery over the entire route cannot be excelled for beauty and grandeur, and we are requested to say that all accommodations will be first-class. There will be no jamming or crowding, as the company does not expect an unweildy crowd. Therefore, people who desire to make the trip quietly are assured that everything in connection with it will be of the first order.

The fare has been put down extremely low, and it will be years and years before such an opportunity will again present itself. The usual excursion rate over the same route is $12.00, so there is a saving of $5.40 at once.

The Telegraph.

"Telegraphic blunders are the rule up-stairs now," said a brotherhood man to a Commercial-Gazette reporter. "In fact there is scarcely a message sent out that is not bulled. Here are blunders which have been made by the plugs' up stairs. For 'Eclipse' base ball club one of the men received it E. C. Lippe base ball club. Another one got a message reading 'Ella has come. Spencer's menagerie.' This, was addressed to a business man and referred to a niece. He could not imagine what his niece could be going to do with a menagerie. Judge of his surprise when he learned that the message should have read: 'Ella has cerebro-spinal meningitis,' A wife received a message from her spouse, who was away, reading, 'I will be hog to-morrow.' This startling information caused her a great deal of uneasiness until she ascertained that it should have read, 'I will be home to-morrow. This blunder was made by writing the telegraphic letters m and e and making them g. The telegraphic letters are two dashes — — for m and a for the letter e; when run together thus — — they make the letter g. For J. B. Lippincott & Co., they got it J. B. Lipp, Scott & Co., and E. L. Bacon & Bolt Co., ought to have read Elba Iron & Bolt Co. The word co-operative was received 'Cooper alive,' and for 'first day of races' one of the artists got 'Frost Boy w n race.' 'Send me three cow ears,' should have been 'Send me three coal cars.' 'Send me check for Dr. Patch' should have read 'Send me check for dispatch.' 'Mr. J. Gitt and pie' ought to have been J. Gillispie. 'Send me a half-dozen pair of plain stove buttons' puzzled a local jeweler until he found out that sleeve buttons were wanted by a country correspondent. 'Graphic Branch of Knights of Labor' should have been 'Telegraphic Branch,' etc. A message relating to kinds of glass, and reading 'S. P. one of M. P.,' was received 'Spone ofmp,' and was signed 'M. S. C. Lapp' instead of 'M. S. Clapp.' The crowning bull was the following. The original dispatch read: 'The lumberman in this section are skidding their logs preparatory to hauling them to their mills,' and when it had passed through the hands of one of the receiving operators upstairs it read: 'The lumbermen in this section are skinning their dogs preparatory to hauling them to their meals."

How to Drive Flies Out of a Room.

From the British Medical Journal.

Observations made by M. Rafford, a member of the Society d'Horticulture at Limoges, show that a castor oil plant having been placed in a room infested with flies, they disappeared as by enchantment. Wishing to find the cause, he soon found under the castor oil plant a number of dead flies, and a large number of bodies had remained clinging to the under surface of the leaves. It would therefore appear that the leaves of the castor oil plant give out an essential oil, or some toxic principle which possesses very strong insecticide qualities. Castor oil plants are in France very much used as ornamental plants in rooms, as they resist very well variations of atmosphere and temperature. As the castor oil plant is very much grown and cultivated in all gardens, the Journal d'Agriculture points out that it would be worth while to try decoctions of the leaves to destroy green flies and other insects which in summer are so destructive to plants and fruit trees. Anyhow, M. Rafford's observations merit that trial should be made of the properties of the castor oil plant both for the destruction of flies in dwellings and of other troublesome insects.

Where She Drew the Line.

A very thin woman had felt the power of the spirit and had been converted, and she appeared before the session to pass the preliminary examination.

"Have you experienced a change of heart?" asked the elder, gently.

"Yes, sir, I believe I have."

"And you want to live a new life?"

"Yes, sir, I hope I do."

"Are you willing to renounce the world, the flesh and the devil?"

"Do I have to do that?"

"Certainly, if you would be a consistent Christian."

"Can't I give up two of them and still go into the church?"

"No, the renunciation must be complete."

"Well, then you must excuse me. I want to be a Christian, I want to give up the world and the devil, but if a woman as thin already as I am has to give up any more flesh, she might as well give up wanting to be a Christian, and go and join a side show as the great American only living skeleton. Gentlemen, you will have to excuse me. I want to join the church, but I am not prepared to join a side show this summer."

Mrs. Swisshelm.

Mrs. Jane Grey Swisshelm is still dangerously sick at her home in Swissvale, a suburb of Pittsburgh. The disease is fever of a typhoid type, coupled with loss of vitality consequent upon old age. The attendant physician has no hope of her recovery. Mrs. Swisshelm is a lineal descendant of Lady Jane Grey, who for ten days was Queen of England. She was among the first to join the abolition movement. Later she threw her influence in favor of temperance, doing effective work with voice and pen. She has written voluminously She is the the author of two volumes on autobiography and "Letters to Country Girls," both interesting works. Her attack upon Daniel Webster, in 1848, and her controversy will be remembered by the general reader. She was born, and, with a few exceptions, has always lived in Allegheny county. She resided in Indiana county a year or two and made her home in a handsome little cottage near Liamondville, surrounded by a beautiful grove of young pines. The ground was given her by the late Dr. Mitchell, who admired her greatly for her anti-slavery sentiments. During her absence in the city her cottage was burned during a forest fire, and she declined to rebuild it, and shortly after left the county and located at Swissvale, Allegheny county; however, making frequent visits to her friends there.

Earthquakes and Conflagrations.

NAPLES, July 30.—Professor Palmieri, director of the meterological observatory on Mount Vesuvius, states that the disaster on the Island of Ischia, on Saturday night, was not due to an earthquake, but to a subsidence of the ground. The scenes here occasioned by the accident were heart-rending. The hospitals are crowded with wounded survivors, and the dead houses filled with the dead bodies of the victims. The bodies of several Neapolitan ladies have been recovered from the ruins. Ten houses remain standing at Casamicciola. Cries for help can be heard coming from the ruins. Sappers are hard at work endeavoring to rescue persons still alive. Boats from the island filled with dead bodies are arriving here constantly.

LATER.—The survivors say that thirty-seven persons were entombed in a room in the hotel Pircola Sentenella. Count Hergardi, after three hours exhausting labor, rescued eleven persons, but failed to accomplish the principal object of his efforts, the saving of his sister.

LONDON, July 30.—4.80 p. m.—A dispatch from Naples just received says: It is not stated that the number of persons killed by the earthquake on the Island of Ischia, on Saturday, was 2,000, and the number wounded 1,000.

LATER—It is now stated as certain that four thousand persons perished. The stench from the dead bodies of human beings and animals was almost unbearable. Several men and women were rescued from the ruins Monday morning. Many more might have been saved if a larger force of rescuers had been available earlier. Many persons who were heard groaning during the night were dead before they could be reached and carried to places of safety.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 30.—One hundred and eighty houses have been destroyed by fire in the town of Semenov, in the government of Nizhnee-Novgorod.

Killed by a Runaway Horse.

POTTSVILLE, July 30.—This morning Conord Spiese, a Port Carbon butcher, drove to Miller's saw mill, at Middleport, for a load of slabs. The mill stands close to the railroad track. Mr. Spiese let his horse stand untied. About half the slabs were loaded on the wagon when a coal train came up and began to shift cars on the mill siding. The bumping of the cars frightened the horse, which started to run away. Mr. Spiese caught the bridle, but was unable to control the horse, which dashed off at a fearful speed. Mr. Spiese held on to the bridle until the railroad crossing was reached, where he was thrown under the wagon and instantly killed. His skull was crushed in and his body terribly mangled. The deceased was thirty-five years of age and leaves a wife and four small children.

—The State Dental Society met at Cresson last week. On Tuesday, July 31, the first session was held, about fifty representatives of the profession being present with their wives and families. Rev. J. L. Russell, of Altoona, delivered an address of welcome which was an able and humorous production. The gentleman couldn't understand what occult relationship between the dentist's profession and that of the clergyman brought him the high privilege of welcoming them except that they share the desire and effort to make this old pain-ridden world a happier place to live in. Without speaking derogatory of the profession he was of opinion that the North American aborigines, having exhausted their ordinary resources of torture on a captive, would have welcomed the modern easy-cushioned, nickle-plated racks of the dentist. "A tooth for a tooth" was the formula of a most exact and even handed justice. None of us would challenge the patriotism of Robbie Burns when he invokes a "Twelve months toothache on Scotland's foes." The pleasing fiction, "Teeth extracted without pain," should be understood in the sense that the teeth are extracted, but the pain isn't. There is no limit to the dentist's powers. He can transfer a man's treasures from his pocket to his mouth, and although none was ever known to cause a child to be born with a silver spoon between his lips, it is so arranged that many a man dies with a golden plate in his mouth.

Peruna.

This medicine was introduced to the medical profession and the public at large by S. B. Hartman, M. D., in 1877, after he had prescribed it to over 40,000 patients in almost every disease to which flesh is heir.

It is wholly composed of numerous vegetable ingredients, each one of which is acknowledged by the medical profession to be the most potent of all the herbal remedies known to medical science.

But its great virtue is mainly attributable to the new and peculiar proportions in which the harmonious ingredients are combined, and to the extreme care exercised in its manufacture, using only the pure, active principles, and excluding all that is crude or irritating. No one should be without Peruna.

"No Sir; I don't believe newspaper men are more dissipated than any other class of men who earn their living by their brains," said Mr. A. H. Siegfried, manager of the advertising department of the St. Paul Pioneer-Press. "Still, those of them who do desk work are tempted to stimulate, for it's very hard on the nerves and stomach."

"As for example—?"

"As for example in my own case, I stuck to my desk on this paper until my nerves were like a bunch of telegraph wires after a gale, and my stomach kept about as good time as a two-dollar watch. My friends suggested this and the doctors advised that, but one day I caught on' to an 'ad.' of PARKER'S TONIC and tried it. I have never endorsed a proprietary medicine before, but I shall depart from my rule and say that the Tonic is not merely the best thing but the only thing that breaks up these attacks. All desk-workers should make a note of it."

This preparation, which has been known as PARKER'S GINGER TONIC, will hereafter be advertised and sold simply under the name of PARKER'S TONIC. As unprincipled dealers are constantly decieving their customers by substituting inferior articles under the name of ginger, and as ginger is really an unimportant ingredient, we drop the misleading word

There is no change, however, in the preparation itself, and all bottles remaining in the hands of dealers, wrapped under the name of PARKER'S GINGER TONIC, contain the genuine medicine if the fac-simile signature of HISCOX & Co. is at the bottom of the outside wrapper.

Religio-Philosophical Journal.

A large eight page weekly paper, devoted to the exposition of the Science and Philosophy of Modern Spiritualism; an advocate of Free Thought and General Reform, and a channel for the discussion of all matters of interest relating to the advancement of civilization.

A Broad and Liberal Platform.

We shall advocate the Spiritual Philosophy with its bright outlook toward the life beyond, undimmed by any haze or darkness of uncertainty; yet, while holding firmly to our own ideas, and criticising others, fairly, frankly and strongly if need be, we shall respect all honest opinions, give them a fair hearing, and so aim to win the respect of those from whom we may differ.

Of the passing events and sayings of the day, in Church and State and social life, as they bear on the objects for which the paper is published, we shall make due record and comment. Of the wonderful yet natural facts and phenomena of spiritualism, as they occur all over the land, we hope to make valuable record. In all that the wide scope of the RELIGIO-PHILOSOPHICAL JOURNAL takes in we shall strive to enlarge and enrich our pages, and call in the help of new and valuable correspondents, in response to the generous and enlarging support of the earnest and intelligent people whose aid and sympathy is our inspiration to new effort.

The Fire Record.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., August 5.—A fire this morning on Post street destroyed almost the entire block. Thirty buildings were burned to the ground, among them the winter garden theatre and Druids hall. The losses are estimated at $300,000; insurance believed to be less than half that amount. The fire was the greatest in extent of area that has occurred in this city since 1876. Over two-thirds of the entire block is in ashes. The flames were discovered at 1 o'clock, and, although an alarm was instantly given, it was evident before the first engine reached the scene, that the fire would be the most disastrous and most difficult to cope with the department had yet encounted. This was chiefly due to the construction of the building of the Winter Garden theatre where the fire started. It was a long frame structure filled with inflammable material, covered by an asphaltum roof and sand-wiched between other old frame buildings. The flames spread with such rapidity that in fifteen minutes the buildings on both sides were on fire, making the heat intense. It was useless to attempt to enter them, and a general alarm was sounded. Every effort was directed to prevent the spread of the flames. Patrols were organized and ropes were stretched across the streets to hold back the crowd so that the firemen would not be impeded. A strong fight was made to save Eutracht Redman's Druid's hall and the Pacific college, but the efforts were unsuccessful.

Editor Reid's Denial.

CHICAGO, August 2.—A morning paper publishes an interview with Whitelaw Reid of the New York Tribune, relative to the appointment of Stanley Matthews to the supreme bench. Mr. Reid gives an emphatic denial to the whole story. The following is the interview: The reporter said he had been sent to ask Mr. Reid concerning Dorsey's statement about the alleged bargain which Dorsey said Reid probably knew about for the appointment of Stanley Matthews to the supreme bench. Reid replied: "I never made any such bargain with General Garfield, directly or indirectly, and have no reason to think any such bargain was made by any one else. I never even asked him for the appointment of Matthews, nor did I know Matthews was to be appointed after his rejection by the senate under Hayes." An interview with Mr. George Jones, of the New York Times, is also published, in which Jones pronounces untrue the Dorsey statement, that he had ever asked for, sought or accepted aid from the National committee or any one.

Courting Death.

LOCKPORT, N. Y., August 5.—Captain J. D. Rhodes, of Salamanka, a swimmer of some note, having a life preserving armor, patented by himself and who in 1877 dived from a staging one hundred feet high near the ferry landing, Niagara river, now writes to Superintendent Neilson, of Prospect Park, Niagara Falls, that he will use his armor and give $1,000 bonds to swim the rapids and whirlpool during this summer, at any time between now and September 25, and he desires to make arrangements with the park company, offering to deposit $1,000 with them as security. Neilson wrote him, declining to be a party to the suicidal attempt. Captain Rhodes then replied that he should come to the the Falls and if the authorities would not give him an opportunity would cross to the Canadian side from Captain Webb's starting point and show to the world what his life-saving armor will do. He says: "It is not for any notoriety or money that I shall make the attempt, but purely to demonstrate that the armor I wear will, with my ability and strength, carry me safely through. I shall come to the Falls within nine days, and make my points and carry out my plans, and the first person who shall endeavor to retard my progress I will take under my arm and give him a bath." An oil barrel half filled with water, then headed tight, and decorated with flags, went safely through the rapids this morning and at no time was entirely submerged.

Foreign Flashes.

PARIS, August 3.—The Chinese military attache at Berlin, who recently assured M. Challemel Lacour, the French minister of foreign affairs, of the friendly attitude of China toward France, explains that his assurance was merely an expression of his private opinion.

NAPLES, August 3.—There were seven Englishmen killed by the earthquake at Ischia. It has been ascertained that Miss Van Allen, who is mentioned among the injured by the disaster, is a resident of San Francisco.

ALEXANDRIA, August 3.—Three deaths from cholera occurred here yesterday. Although the cholera epidemic continues at Ismailia, there were no deaths there from it yesterday.

CAIRO, August 3.—The weather here is intensely hot, and the average temperature under the canvas is 106 degrees. Several deaths from sunstroke have occurred. The troops are constantly moving from place to place. The health of the troops at Elwerdan is greatly improved.

AUGOULENE, France, August 3.—An explosion occurred at a powder mill here to-day by which six persons were killed or injured. The damage to property amounts to 1,000,000 francs.

The Louisville Exposition.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Aug. 2.—The President and most of those who came with him having left the city, the Exposition Building was to-day again filled with workmen pushing the displays to completion, and ten days' time will see every space filled. Very many visitors were in attendance to-day, and to-night a fine display of fireworks attracted many to the park, which forms a part of the Exposition enclosure.

Senator Bayard, Hon. Perry Belmont, President Baldwin of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad, and Mr. E. H. Green, of New York, left for Frankfort to-day, where they will be the guests of Colonel J. H. Stoddard Johnston. To-morrow they will visit the stock farms of Alexander and the Harpers. At night a public reception will be given them at Colonel Johnston's residence.

Pennsylvania Excursionists.

RALEIGH, N. C., August 3.—A party of excursionists from Pennsylvania arrived here to-day under the auspices of the state immigration society, their object being to examine lands with a view to securing the settlement here of a large number of Pennsylvanians. They were shown every courtesy. All were greatly gratified with the treatment they received and think highly of the state as a place for settlers. The party was entertained at Henderson by the board of trade. They adopted resolutions expressing thanks to the people of that town and recommending all persons from Pennsylvania desiring to emigrate to look first at lands in this section. All of the party are well.

Fenian Dynamite in Scotland.

LONDON, August 3.—A box of dynamite, to which a lighted fuse was attached, has been discovered in a large linch factory at Cupar-Fife, Scotland. The fuse was extinguished before it reached the explosive. The attempt to blow up the factory is attributed to Fenianism. Great excitement has been caused by the affair and the police are searching for the persons who placed the box where it was found.

State Legislation.

HARRISBURG, August 3.—In the house the senate resolution to adjourn on the 7th of August was referred to the committee on ways and means.

Mr. Amerman's resolution for a free conference committee on the senatorial and representitive apportionment bill was adopted by a strict party vote.

The house then adjourned until Monday at 9 p. m.

Buried Under falling Walls.

WASHINGTON, August 3.—Part of an old wall caved in at the Interior Department to-day, burying two men beneath the debris. The entrance to the coal vaults on the east side of the building is being enlarged and the brick walls raised higher. A scaffold had just been erected, and the bricklayers had scarcely begun work when a portion of the wall and the embankment above it gave way. Two bricklayers, James Phillips, of Alexandria, and John Bresnahan, of East Washington, were buried under the fallen wall. One of the latter's legs was broken and Phillips was badly injured.

Fatal Effect of an Explosion.

GALVESTON, Tex., August 2.—On Tuesday night the store of J. E. Turney, wholesale grocer, was destroyed with its contents. The loss is $20,000. During the fire a quantity of powder exploded, jarring the earth for blocks away and causing a man named Davis, who was sleeping on an up-stairs porch a square distant, to jump down and break his right thigh bone and both forearms. His recovery is doubtful.

Williamsport's Bad Streets.

WILLIAMSPORT, August 1.—To-day Judge Mayer heard the response of the City Councils to the rule to show cause why a mandamus should not issue against them for dereliction in not repairing the principal streets of the city. Judge Linn and H. C. McCormick argued for the attachment and J. J. Metzger, O. P. Reighard and J. M. Wood appeared for the Councils. Judge Mayer reserved his decision until Saturday.

The Telegraphers' Strike.

NEW YORK, August 3.—The situation of the telegraph strike is not materially changed. Two of the strikers returned to work to-day. The Western Union business is being handled promptly. The superintendent of the Mexican telegraph company stated that there was no foundation for the story that the staff of his company have struck.

Chicago Rolling Mills to Shut Down.

CHICAGO, August 1.—It is stated this morning, as a result of the strike of the workmen in the rolling mills at South Chicago, where 1,800 men are usually employed, that the management has decided to shut down for an indefinite period.

Alfonso Greets the Queen.

MADRID, August 1.—King Alfonso and Queen Christina arrived at the royal palace of San Ildefonso la Grania at 6.40 yesterday evening. The King went to the frontier to meet his royal spouse; this fact dissipates whatever may still remain of the theory that the two had quarreled.

Kalakaua to Visit San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, August 1.—The steamship Mariposa, which is due here on the 15th instant, will bring King Kalakaua and the Royal Hawaiian Band to attend the triennial conclave of Knights Templar.

Inspecting a Bellefonte Gentleman's Stables—The Finest Thoroughbred Stock in Centre County.

On Saturday we gave ourselves the pleasure of a visit to the stables of Mr. Abram Valentine of this place who owns, perhaps, more and better thoroughbred stock than any other gentleman in Centre county. Mr. Valentine takes great pride in the quality of the horses and cows which come into his possession and can now rejoice in the ownership of several pure blooded cows as well as colts, the latter claiming direct and near relationship to some of the most noted horse-flesh in the land.

About ten years ago Mr. Valentine and Adam Hoy, Esq., brought full-blooded Alderney cows to this place and began the work of infusing a new and highly-prized blood into the bovine species of the county. The Alderney, which have their native abode on the islands of Jersey and Guernsey, are remarkable for the richness of their milk. They are small in proportions, but it is found that after being transferred to American soil they increase in size and in the quantity of the milk they give, with no decrease in its quality. Thus English breeders of the pure-blooded animal will eventually find it advantageous to import their stock from America. Mr. Valentine owns three beautiful and very profitable specimens of the pure Alderney, two of them only about two years of age and one about three years. Notwithstanding that this cow has the reputation of not giving quite so large a quantity of milk as other species one of these animals in question yields as much as any cow of her age in this vicinity, gentlemen who have had extended experience saying that they never saw her superior in this respect. Another fine cow is a cross between an Alderney and Ayrshire, from a pure Alderney and an Ayrshire bull now kept in the stables at Valentine's Ironworks. Mr. V. takes special care not to allow his animals to become mixed with other and inferior breeds and is the only gentleman in Bellefonte who has given special attention to this. He has also a promising two-months old calf which is also a pure blooded animal.

In a large stall in one corner of the stable a beautiful one-year-old colt, with high arching neck and elegant proportions in every particular, looked at us with that gentle and confident expression which is a peculiarity of a superior breed of horses. This is a pure-blooded Hambletonian from Mr. Valentine's Kentucky mare. There is every indication that this animal will develop extraordinary qualities of speed. In a field in the northern part of the town we found Maud V. who is at least a half-cousin (if such a relationship is admissible) of the famous Maud S, her father being a half brother of the father of the latter famous mare, both claiming direct descent from Harold. She is three years old and is a very beautiful animal, dark brown in color, perfectly symmetrical and graceful. She is very gentle and affectionate and it is a rare pleasure to stroke her glossy coat which seems almost like velvet. Whether she will ever make the fastest mile on record is not yet certain, but it is safe to predict that she will. We might write much more about these beautiful animals, but space will not permit.

Grand Excursion to Niagara.

We call special attention to the article on second page of this issue headed Niagara Falls. For several years the people of Bellefonte and vicinity have been calling for a cheap excursion to Niagara, and the Pennsylvania Railroad Co. has at last listened to the demand and has made arrangements to give the people of this section an excursion to the great cataract at an astonishingly low rate of fare, viz., $7.20 round trip, figures which are within reach of everybody's pocketbook. The excursion will start on Tuesday, August 21, via Northern Central railroad, giving everyone desiring to go plenty of time to prepare for the trip. A better opportunity than this to reach the falls will probably never be offered our people, and Bellefonte should send a large delegation. Full particulars are given in the article alluded to on 2d page. All wishing tickets for this delightful excursion will please send in their names to E. L. Gray, Bellefonte, Pa.

Steubenville (O.) Female Seminary.

No school has such a showing for pupils graduated to date, as this Seminary with a successful run of over 53 years. We knew of no better place to get a thorough education. Before making choice send to Rev. A. M. Reid, Ph. D., for one of the beautiful catalogues of the institution.

—The sale of the valuable properties advertised elsewhere by George Dale, executor of the estate of the late Robert Kendall, will occur on Thursday, the 16th inst., at 2 o'clock p. m. The several tracts are under a high state of cultivation and will be sold at a bargain. The sale will take place on the premises in College township. Mr. George Dale's address is Lemont, Centre county, Pa.

COURT PROCLAMATION.—Whereas, the Hon. Charles A. Mayer, President Judge of the Court of Common Pleas of the 25th judicial district, consisting of the Counties of Centre, Clinton and Clearfield, and the Hon. J. G. Larimer and the Hon. J. K. Runkle, Associate Judges in Centre county, having issued their precept, bearing date the 20th of July, A. D., 1883, to me directed, for holding a court of Over and Terminer and General Jail Delivery and Quarter Sessions of the peace in Bellefonte, for the County of Centre, and to commence on the fourth Monday of Aug. next, being the 27th day of August, 1883, and to continue two weeks, notice is hereby given to the Coroner, Justices of the Peace, Aldermen and Constables of said County of Centre, that they be then and there in their proper persons, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of said day, with their records, inquisitions, examinations, and their own remembrances, to do those things which to their office appertains to be done, and those who are bound in recognizances to prosecute against the prisoners that are or shall be in the jail of Centre county, be then and there to prosecute against them as shall be just.

Given under my hand, at Bellefonte, the 20th day of July, in the year of our Lord, 1883, and in the one hundred and seventh year of the independence of the United States.

A Word from a Sportsman.

MR. EDITOR: An article in the Daily News, under date of July 31st, gives evidence that the editor of that sprightly little journal is alive to the interests of the true sportsman and strikes a responsive chord in the heart of every reader who feel that confidence in his skill which prompts him always to prefer a strong, healthy bird to an unfledged one as a test of his marksmanship.

In this connection I would like to say that my attention has been called to a trio of pot hunters who aspire to the honorable title of sportsmen whose suspicious actions leave no question that young, half-fledged pheasants have fallen before their merciless guns in gross violation of law and humanity.

Surely that gunner who will slaughter a game bird, too young and weak to fly, deserves another name than sportsman, and proves beyond question that he is no wing shot.

ANGLER.

--Mr. E. C. Humes, of this place, is not only famous as a banker, but he also carries on agricultural operations after the most modern and approved manner and the result is surprising yields. In this way he is doing much for Centre county husbandry. He has an excellent farmer in the person of Mr. George Kaup, who attends to the practical work on his farm adjoining this place and willingly seconds Mr. H. in all the endeavors to cultivate large crops. He just finished harvesting twenty acres of Eureka wheat yielding more than thirty bushels to the acre. The golden grains, which just came from the thresher, are beautiful, large, solid and uniformly symmetrical, just such as will delight the veteran farmer's eye and make the average miller dance with joy. In speaking of it Mr. Humes says "it matured early and was strong in the straw." When we have an opportunity to sample the flour which the fine cereal produces we will elaborate further on the subject.

Finger Boards.

In our pathway through life few errors need be made, because, if we watch closely, we shall be influenced in the choice of our separate ways by a guiding hand, a subtle power, which we can implicitly trust. These are the finger-boards of the mind, and it is only necessary to consult them to be always right. In the same way, we are of opinion that finger-boards should be placed at spots where roads intersect and cross each other. We are told by travelers that such indexes are frequently placed at the intersection of country roads in other counties, but that Centre county is almost entirely without them and the proper road to take is often perplexing to the traveler who may be a comparative stranger. We are of opinion that there is an act of legislature compelling the erection and continuance of such finger boards and, if so, we hope that those in authority will place them at all desirable points.

—Again the Baptist churches of this place and Milesburg are to be without a pastor. Rev. E. Edwards, who has served the two churches during the past year very acceptably to both congregations, will sever his connection with them in about six weeks to go to Florida. Rev. Edwards hopes, however, before his departure to put the church in this place in better financial condition, thus enabling them to perform their part more fully in supporting a minister when another is called. His labors here have been very useful. He is a man of cultivated and mature powers fitted to officiate over the most prosperous congregation, and his efforts here have elevated the standard of religion in the two churches. We wish him continued success in the 'Sunny South."

—Our good friend, Mr. J. H. Sands, was delivering bread in the vicinity of Henderson's farm, on Tuesday evening of last week, when a large stone weighing several pounds struck him on the head injuring him severely, and if it had not been that he wore a stiff hat at the time the stone would doubtless have killed him. It came from a blast at least 600 feet distant. This induces us to warn those who are blasting rocks in the vicinity of dwellings to be more careful or loss of life will be the consequence.

—Mr. W. E. Beals, of Philipsburg, is the proprietor of a very fine restaurant which is fitted up for the accommodation of ladies and gentleman and enjoys a large and constantly increasing patronage. Visitors in Philipsburg can always secure excellent meals at Mr. Beals' restaurant.

—Have you seen Sourbeck's new delivery wagon? It's a daisy, and John feels as important as an Irish lord when mounted on the seat.

NO HOME EXEMPT.

THE SOURCE OF THOSE MYSTERIOUS TROUBLES THAT COME TO EVERY HOUSEHOLD EXPLAINED.

The following article from the Democrat and Chronicle, of Rochester, N. Y., is of so striking a nature and eminates from so reliable a source that it is herewith republished entire. In addition to the valuable matter it contains, it will be found exceedingly interesting:

To the Editor of the Democrat and Chronicle:

SIR:—My motives for the publication of the most unusual statements which follow, are, first, gratitude for the fact that I have been saved from a most horrible death, and, secondly, a desire to warn all who read this statement against some of the most deceptive influences by which they have ever been surrounded. It is a fact that to-day thousands of people are within a foot of the grave and they do not know it. To tell how I was caught away from just this position and to warn others against nearing it, are my objects in this communication.

On the first day of June, 1881, I lay at my residence in this city surrounded by my friends and waiting for death. Heaven only knows the agony I then endured, for words can never describe it. And yet, if a few years previous, any one had told me that I was to be brought so low, and by so terrible a disease, I should have scoffed at the idea. I had always been uncommonly strong and healthy, had weighed over 200 pounds and hardly knew, in my own experience, what pain or sickness were. Very many people who will read this statement realize at times that they are unusually tired and cannot account for it. They feel dull and indefinite pains in various parts of the body and do not understand it. Or they are exceedingly hungry one day and entirely without appetite the next. This was just the way I felt when the relentless malady which had fastened itself upon me first began. Still I thought it was nothing; that probably I had taken a cold which would soon pass away. Shortly after this I noticed a heavy, and at times a neuralgic, pain in my head, but as it would come one day and be gone the next, I paid but little attention to it. However, my stomach was out of order and my food failed to digest, causing at times great inconvenience. Yet I had no idea, even as a physician, that these things meant anything serious or that a monstrous disease was becoming fixed upon me. Candidly, I thought I was suffering from malaria and so doctored myself accordingly. But I got no better. I next noticed a peculiar color and odor about the fluids I was passing—also that there were large quantities one day and very little the next, and that a persistent froth and scum appeared upon the surface and a sediment settled in the bottom. And yet I did not realize my danger, for, indeed, seeing these symptoms continually, I finally became accustomed to them, and my suspicion was wholly disarmed by the fact that I had no pain in the affected organs or in their vicinity. Why I should have been so blinded I cannot understand.

There is a terrible future for all physical neglect, and impending danger always brings a person to his senses, even though it may then be too late. I realized at last my critical condition and aroused myself to overcome it. And, Oh! how hard I tried! I consulted the best medical skill in the land. I visited all the prominent mineral springs in America and traveled from Maine to California. Still I grew worse. No two physicians agreed as to my malady. One said I was troubled with spinal irritation; another, nervous prostration; another, malaria; another, dyspepsia; another, heart disease; another, general debility; another, congestion of the base of the brain, and so on through a long list of common diseases, the symptoms of all of which I really had. In this way several years passed, during all of which time I was steadily growing worse. My condition had really become pitiable. The slight symptims I at first experienced were developed into terrible and constant disorders—the little twigs of pain had grown to oaks of agony. My weight had been reduced from 207 to 130 pounds. My life was a torture to myself and friends. I could retain no food upon my stomach, and lived wholly by injections. I was a living mass of pain. My pulse was uncontrollable. In my agony I frequently fell upon the floor, convulsively clutched the carpet and prayed for death. Morphine had little or no effect in deadening the pain. For six days and nights I had the death-premonitory hiccoughs constantly. My urine was filled with tube casts and albumen. I was struggling with Bright's disease of the kidneys in its last stages.

While suffering thus I received a call from my pastor, the Rev. Dr. Foote, Rector of St. Paul's church, this city. I felt that it was our last interview, but in the course of conversation he mentioned a remedy of which I had heard much but had never used. Dr. Foote detailed to me the many remarkable cures which had come under his observation, by means of this remedy, and urged me to try it. As a practicing physician and a graduate of the schools, I cherished the prejudice both natural and common with all regular practitioners, and derided the idea of any medicine outside the regular channels being the least beneficial. So solicitous, however, was Dr. Foote that I finally promised that I would waive my prejudice and try the remedy he so highly recommended. I began its use on the first day of June and took it according to directions. At first it sickened me, but this I thought was a good sign for me in my debilitated condition. I continued to take it; the sickening sensation departed and I was able to retain food upon my stomach. In a few days I noticed a decided change for the better as also did my wife and friends. My hic-coughs ceased and I experienced less pain than formerly. I was so rejoiced at this improved condition that, upon what I had believed but a few days before was my dying bed, I vowed, in the presence of my family and friends, should I recover I would both publicly and privately make known this remedy for the good of humanity wherever and whenever I had an opportunity. I also determined that I would give a course of lectures in the Corinthian Academy of Music in this city, stating in full the symptoms and almost hopelessness of my disease and the remarkable means by which I have been saved. My improvement was constant from that time, and in less than three months I had gained 26 pounds in flesh, became entirely free from pain and I believe I owe my life and present condition wholly to Warner's Safe Cure, the remedy which I used.

Since my recovery I have thoroughly re-investigated the subject of kidney difficulties and Bright's disease, and the truths developed are astounding. I therefore state, deliberately, as a physician, that I believe more than one-half the deaths which occur in America are caused by Bright's disease of the kidneys. This may sound like a rash statement, but I am prepared to fully verify it. Bright's disease has no distinctive symptoms of its own, (indeed, it often develops without any pain whatever in the kidneys or their vicinity), but has the symptoms of nearly every other known complaint. Hundreds of people die daily, whose burials are authorized by a physician's certificate "Heart Disease," "Apoplexy," "Paralysis," "Spinal Complaint," "Rheumatism," "Pneumonia" and other common diseases, when in reality it was Brights Disease of the kidneys. Few physicians, and fewer people, realize the extent of this disease or its dangerous and insidious nature. It steals into the system like a thief, manifests its presence by the commonest symptoms, and fastens itself upon the constitution before the victim is aware. It is nearly as hereditary as consumption, quite as common and fully as fatal. Entire families, inheriting it from their ancescestors, have died, and yet none of the number knew or realized the mysterious power which was removing them. Instead of common symptoms it often shows none whatever, but brings death suddenly, and as such is usually supposed to be heart disease. As one who has suffered, and knows by bitter experience what he says, I implore everyone who reads these columns not to neglect the slightest symptom of kidney difficulty. Certain agony and possible death will be the sure result of such neglect, and no one can afford to hazard such chances

I am aware that such an unqualified statement as this, coming from me, known as I am, throughout the entire land as a practitioner and lecturer, will arouse the surprise and possible animosity of the medical profession and astonish all with whom I am acquainted, but I make the foregoing statements, based upon facts which I am prepared to produce, and truths which I can substantiate to the letter. The welfare of those who may possibly be sufferers such as I was, is an ample inducement for me to take the step I have, and if I can successfully warn others from the dangerous path in which I once walked, I am willing to endure all professional and personal consequences.

Business Notices and Other Items.

—The new moon was visible Monday evening.

—Buy your August groceries of Harry Teats & Co.

—The Presbyterian church was closed on Sunday, no service being held in it.

—One of the best grocery stores in Bellefonte is in the Bush House row, and Sechler is the name of the proprietor.

—The residence occupied by Mr. James Milliken on Linn street is undergoing repairs.

—Save money by buying groceries of Harry Teats & Co.

—Mr. Daniel Garman arrived home from the sea shore on Saturday evening. He was accompanied by Miss Rebie Garman and Miss Alice Garman, the latter of Renovo.

—The camp meeting season has arrived in all its glory and seems to be as popular as usual in some sections, although not very favorably thought of in Centre county. But such gatherings are of slight consequence compared with the purchase of first-class groceries, and all our friends know that Sechler's store is the place for that.

—A letter in the postoffice which was mailed in this place is addressed "Mr. John Dangerfield, Cheelsburgh, Pa." As there is no such postoffice the writer should call for his letter.

--On the 1st of August it was stated that rain fell on 42 of the 47 preceding days. Notwithstanding that great rainfall the farmers succeeded in accomplishing their work of harvesting with considerable speed. They will now have time to visit town to purchase groceries at Sechler's store, where they can get the best groceries for the least money.

—Many of the Knights Templar are already starting on their pilgrimage to San Francisco.

—There is a reserve fund of $147,741,000 in the U. S. Treasury, but Sechler, the grocer, will be content with $100,000 expended at his store.

—Harry Teats & Co. understand the needs of the people of Centre county and have their store stocked with a very desirable line of groceries.

—Several picnic parties pass through Centre Hall each pleasant day.

—The very best groceries at Harry Teats & Co.'s store.

We have just received our new Fall and Winter Woolens. Call and leave your order. MONTGOMERY & Co., Tailors. tf

—There is no such thing as inactivity about the boot and shoe establishment of John Powers & Son at any period of the year. This is the season when all the world except the farmer is supposed to take a rest. But Powers & Son form still another exception. They are taking advantage of every moment of spare time in improving the interior of their store room. The long counter at the left of the entrance has been removed and the walls and ceilings are being beautifully cleansed and kalsomined. The effect, when these changes are completed, will be to greatly improve the appearance and convenience of the store room, and they will be prepared for a great rush of business, and will fill all orders satisfactorily.

THE LATEST NEWS.

The Unterrified.

HARRISBURG, August 1.—The city was swarming with the unterrified this morning. At 9.45 the delegates to the convention began to file into the opera house. Chairman Hensel had carefully mapped out their seats, and the ushers escorted every man to his particular place.

At 10.15 Chairman Hensel rapped the gavel on his desk and called the convention to order. Before having the roll called he requested that any objections or contests to be made should be announced during the roll call. Chairman Hensel announced the following temporary officers:

Clerks—E. P. Kisner, P. Gray Meek, S. W. Shadle, J. B. Lichty, George H. Hoffman, James E. Moran.

Senator Humes nominated Robert E. Wright, Jr., of Lehigh, for temporary chairman, and Mr. Wright was unanimously elected.

The chair appointed Senator Humes and John H. Fow, to escort Mr. Wright to the chair. The new chairman returned his thanks.

The convention at 11.30 adjourned to meet at 2 o'clock.

Upon reassembling Robert E. James was chosen permanent chairman and upon taken the chair addressed the convention briefly eulogizing the democratic party and complimenting Governor Pattison's administration. Upon the conclusion of his remarks the convention proceeded to nominate a candidate for auditor general, the following names being put in nomination: W. Hayes Grier, Lancaster; John Sinan, Allegheny: George R. Guss, Chester; Jacob Zeigler, Butler; Robert McCacheran, Cumberland; Robert Taggart, Warren; J. K. Duff, Allegheny; G.L. Brown, Elk; Robt. J. Nicholson, Jefferson; William N. Hurst Philadelphia; F. M. McKiernan, Armstrong. The first ballot resulted in complimentary votes to the different candidates, Grier, Zeigler, McCochran and Taggart running about fifty votes each. Taggart and Ziegler gained on the second ballot and on the third there was a general rally in favor of Taggart who was nominated by a vote of 162 to 77. The nomination was then made unanimous.

Balloting for state treasurer was then proceeded with, the following names having been placed in nomination: Thomas McReynolds, of Bucks; Joseph S. Powell, of Bradford; McCool, of Schuylkill, and Mackin, of Philadelphia. On the first ballot Powell received 132, McReynolds 119, McCool 81 and Mackin 13 votes. The second ballot resulted in the selection of Powell, he receiving 275 votes. The nominees were brought before the convention and in short speeches accepted the nomination.

Freight Train Wrecked.

TROY, N. Y., Aug. 1.—Troy and Boston freight trains collided this morning at Pownall, Vermont. The locomotives and train were wrecked. It is reported six men are killed, all employes. Two of the victims are from this city, named Sullivan and Barrett. The wreck is on fire.

LATER.—On the Troy and Boston road about five minutes after the crash a passenger train, with four cars all filled, was due. A brakeman with his hands, face and head bleeding went out and flagged it. The trainmen and passengers on this train at once set about rescuing the unfortunate men under the freight train, but it was so hot they could do but little. Among the killed were Charles Marden, of Troy, engineer of freight No. 1; John Barrett, of North Adams, conductor of freight No. 6; Mark Sullivan, of Chatham, engineer of train No. 6, and Thomas Lane brakeman of train No. 1; H. H. Bruce, of Pownall, operator of the Troy and Greenfield road at the state line, was also killed. The groans of the men can be heard under the wreck but on account of the fire they cannot be rescued. If they have so long escaped death they stand a chance of being burned alive. The losses of the Troy and Boston road cannot be less than $50,000.

A Wife and Mother Drowns Herself in Lake Erie.

CLEVELAND, O., July 31.—Mrs. Charles Burke, aged 42 years, left her dwelling, on Clifton street, during last night, attired only in sleeping raiment, and walked to the lake at the foot of Watson street and drowned herself. The body was found early this morning. Her husband was reticent when questioned concerning her probable motive. The neighbors presume she was driven insane by Burke's treatment of her 19 year old son, by a former husband, whom he lately drove from home.

Old World News.

BERLIN, August 1.—A large building on Kopnicker strasse, this city, used as a manufactory of velvet, was burned last night. The loss is heavy. Three firemen were killed by falling walls.

LONDON, August 1.—The bishop of Cassmicciola, who was killed by the earthquake there last Saturday night, was Monsignor Mazzella, who was preconized in Partibus for his devoted services on the occasion of the earthquake in Cassamicciola in 1881.

Machine Shop Workmen Suspended.

FORT WAYNE, Ind., July 31.—The Pennsylvania Railroad Company to day suspended for an indefinite period 150 workmen from their machine shops in this city, giving as a cause light freight business for the past month. It is expected the company will re-employ the men in six or eight weeks.

Searching for the Dead.

NAPLES, July 31.—The search of the ruins for the bodies of the victims of the earthquake at Ischia was continued during the night. All the bodies recovered were buried immediately to prevent miasma.

An eye-witness describes the scene at the theatre at Casamicciola when the earthquake occurred as an awful one. The curtain had just risen when a tremendous shock was felt. A fearful roar followed, and the ground rocked like a sea in a storm. A great cry of terror arose from the audience who were thrown into a heap and a large number were buried beneath the timbers of the building which fell upon them. Two more shocks occurred. All who could rushed outside the theatre and hundreds clambered into the trees in the vicinity for safety. Most of the people, however, escaped to the shore, where bonfires were lighted as signals of distress. Hundred of half-naked men and woman, wild with terror and grief, ran to and fro among the ruins with torches during the night searching for missing friends.

LONDON, July 31.—O'Donnell, who shot James Carey, the informer, was accompanied from England by his wife, who appeared to be on intimate terms with Carey's family during the voyage. The Times pronounces the death of Carey a public misfortune. It says he has been an instrument to justice. The murder is calculated to encourage daring and lawless spirits to commit acts of violence. The joy caused in Ireland by the informer's death, is a proof that many elements of danger still exist there.

Contradictory Statements.

NEW YORK, July 31.—The officers of the Western Union telegraph company state that twenty-five wires had been either cut or connected with fine wire, so as to be for the moment useless, between New York and Newark, on the Hackensack Meadows; that thirteen wires had been cut between New York city and Williams' bridge, and twelve between the latter place and Scarsdale, and that all the wires on the Fort Wayne road, near Englewood, Ill., have also been cut. Two more of the striking operators returned to work. The men at St. John who went out have all returned. The strikers at Halifax have applied to be reinstated, but found their places filled. At the headquarters of the strikers, to-day, it was denied that the wires had been cut by striking linemen. If the wires had been cut by them, the brotherhood would order them to be repaired free of cost to the company.

Funeral of Montgomery Blair.

WASHINGTON, July 29.—The funeral services over the remains of the late Montgomery Blair were held at the Mortuary Chapel in Rock Creek Cemetery at half-past five o'clock this evening. There was a large attendance of prominent persons from Maryland and from this city, among them Secretaries Lincoln and Folger Postmaster General Gresham, Generals Meigs, Emery and Wright and Dr. Basil Norris, U. S. A. The widow of the deceased, his sister, three of his sons and other members of his family were also present. Rev. Mr. Averett, of Silver Springs Church, Maryland, and Rev. W. A. Leonard and Rev. Mr. Buck, of this city, officiated. The pall-bearers were seven members of the Silver Springs Church vestry, of which Mr. Blair was a member. The interment was made in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Arrest of a Swindling Contractor.

ERIE, July 29.—Michael Burns, a railroad contractor, defaulted at Erie three years ago, carrying away a large sum of money, greatly distressing his employes in midwinter, and deserting his wife to the mercy of creditors, who sold her home. He has been apprehended in Rochester, N. Y., where he has been living with another woman. His wife has gone to Rochester to appear against him. Burns is the same person who carried off a large sum of money belonging to his employes while a contractor on the Canada Southern Railroad. Since he left Erie he has been a railroad contractor in the West under an assumed name. His present contract at Rochester is worth a large sum of money. Burns is very respectably connected in Erie.

Carey, the Informer, Shot.

LONDON, July 30.—Intelligence has just been received here that James Carey, the informer in the Phœnix park murder cases, was shot dead yesterday on the steamship Melrose, while she was between Cape Town and Port Elizabeth. The deed was committed by a fellow passenger named O'Donnell.

LATER.—Later advices about the killing of James Carey show that he was shot while landing from the Melrose, at Port Elizabeth. O'Donnell his slayer is in custody. The government had taken special and expensive measures to protect Carey.

Tanners Make an Assignment.

BOSTON, July 30.—The Journal says F. Shaw & Brothers, the proprietors of the largest tannery in the world, made an assignment today to F. A. Wyoman. Their total liabilities cannot be given, but their assets are rated to be about $5,000,000. They were creditors to Charles W. Copeland & Co. to the amount of $200,000.

LATER.—The liabilities of F. Shaw & Co., are stated by the counsel of the firm to be $3,500,000 and the nominal assets $5,000,000.

Frightened by Yellow Fever.

NORFOLK, July 30.—The proximity of the vessel Andean, from Vera Cruz, with yellow fever on board, has created a feeling of the greatest alarm, and at a largely attended meeting on Sunday, at which were present business men, city officials, health authorities and others, a resolution was adopted requesting the removal of the Quarantine ground to a point opposite Lynn Haven Bay, and also calling upon the Surgeon General of the Marine Hospital Service to establish a rigid quarantine of the Capes. Active measures continue to prevent the approach of yellow fever. Surgeon Smith, of this city, has been directed by Surgeon General Hamilton to take charge of the Quarantine of the Capes.

NEW ORLEANS, July 30.—Two men to day escaped in a boat from a vessel undergoing quarantine at the Ship Island station and made their way to Pass Christian. When the fact became known to President Jones, of the Louisiana Board of Health, he ordered the arrest of the men. They were taken into custody and turned over to the United States authorities, charged with stealing the boat.

The Emperors to Meet in Private.

BERLIN, July 30.—No Ministers will be present at the interview between the Emperor of Germany and the Emperor of Austria at Ischl on August 7.

AN ACHING BACK is oftentimes a more serious matter than it seems. If it proceeds from disordered kidneys the sufferer has real cause for alarm—and nine times out of ten it does come from the kidneys. Reader, if such is your plight, you cannot use Hunt's Remedy too soon. Your case may become very serious before you know it. Hunt's Remedy, the great kidney and liver medicine, is a sure cure; the ONLY sure cure, indeed, for all ailments of the kidneys, bladder, liver and urinary organs—very dangerous diseases.

No Charge for Consultation.

If you are suffering from any chronic disease about which you are growing discouraged, such as pulmonary trouble, catarrh, bronchitis, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous prostration, etc., send a statement of your condition to Drs. Starkey & Palen, 1109 Girard st., Philadelphia, and get their opinion as to the value of Compound Oxygen in your case. It will cost you nothing. Ask them, at the same time, to furnish you with such documents in regard to their treatment and such evidence in regard to their professional standing as will enable you to clearly apprehend the action of their treatment and give you confidence in them personally.

Shiloh's Consumption Cure.

This is beyond question the most successful Cough Medicine we have ever sold, a few doses invariably cure the worst cases of Coughs, Croup, and Bronchitis, while its wonderful success in the cure of Consumption is without parallel in the history of medicine. Since its first discovery it has been sold on a guarantee, a test which no other medicine can stand. If you have a cough we earnestly ask you to try it. Price 10 cts., 50 cts. and $1.00. If your lungs are sore, chest or back lame, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Price 25 cts. Sold by John Harris.

Matches are now so cheap that the man who borrows your pipe and tobacco would scorn to ask for a match also.

A Case that Puzzled the Whole Faculty.

Mrs. Milo Ingram gave the names of some of the most reputable physicians in the two cities (Pittsburg and Allegheny), to whom she had paid large sums of money for treatment, but she rapidly grew worse. She was then taken to the most reputable physicians and surgeons of New York, but with no better success. They had all pronounced it cancer, and declared she must die. The flesh of her breast was eaten away down to her ribs; the breast bone was laid bare and the disease made its way upwards, causing the breast to become detached from the wall of the chest, hanging loose from above. See page 25 of Dr. Hartman's "Ills of Life," how Peruna cured her. They are given away by druggists, gratis.

FLIES AND BUGS.—Flies roaches, nats, bed-bugs, rats, mice, gophers chipmunks, cleared out by "Rough on Rats." 15c.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth! If so, send at once and get a bottle of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhoea, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle. 15 22 1y

—Ho! for Niagara Falls. Greatest inducements ever offered the people of this vicinity to visit the greatest cataract in the world. Bear in mind, the small sum of $7.20 takes you to Niagara and back. Don't allow this opportunity to pass by. Make up your minds without delay and, send in your names to the editor of the News. It is desirable to have the names of all intending to go so that the railroad can form an estimate of the number of tickets to be provided. Send in your names.

—Every day brings a fresh invoice of news regarding Bellefonte's electric light affairs. We are now reliably informed that the Electric Lighting and Steam Heating Power Company will let their light shine on the streets of Bellefonte within one month. Already the following persons have subscribed for lights which will illuminate the front of their business places before the month expires: Harry Hicks, F. X. Lehman, of Butts House, D. Garman & Son and G Guggenheimer, Brockerhoff House, John Anderson and Garman's Hotel. The illuminating apparatus to be used is known as the Arc light and is of 1600 candle power.

Edinburg, Glasgow and a Ride on the Lakes.

SEVENTH LETTER.

July 7, 1883.

We have been in Scotland since the 3d of July and a very pleasant visit we have had. The north of England and the portion of Scotland we passed through were quite as pretty and attractive as other parts of England. As we approached Edinburg the hills became more numerous. For many miles the railroad overlooks the North sea and as we approached Edinburg we had the same view of the Firth of Forth, an arm of the sea. Ever since we have been in England we have noticed that the railroads pass through the most cultivated and richest lands, and also the most romantic and picturesque views constantly greet the eye. Edinburg is the most picturesque large city we have yet seen. It is built on a number of hills, and the buildings are all of a light colored sandstone and of most substantial and elegant designs. We visited many objects of interest. I can enumerate only a few. The Castle was the first place we visited. It is built on a solid rock which rises 383 feet above the level of the sea. The Castle is now used as barracks. Among the many parts of the Castle is an old palace built by Queen Mary in 1565. In this palace are the regalia used by the Scottish sovereigns previous to the union. The soldiers now occupying the Castle are Highlanders, and with their bare knees and full dress looked fierce and formidable. We also visited Holyroad Palace and Abbey. Here are Queen Mary's apartments, and the blood of Rizzio is still shown upon the floor, requiring a good deal of imagination, however, to see it. Here repose in the royal vault David II, James II, James V and his Queen and Henry Lord Darnley.

We also visited St. Giles church, where John Knox preached twelve years, and other places of great interest. Roslin Chapel afforded us great pleasure.

We went to Glasgow by rail and returned by the lakes. We had delightful weather for this trip and will ever remember it as most charming. We took a pretty steamer to Loch Lomond and as we sailed over its length we thought we never saw such pretty islands and hills and mountains. Loch Lomond is the highest of the mountains—it is grand and beautiful, and so fresh and green. From Loch Lomond we took a four-horse coach to Loch Katrine. These coaches are so high that we must climb a ladder to take a seat. As it was our first experience Mrs. Hayes became a little excited climbing up so high, but after we had ridden a few minutes all the fear banished and her enjoyment was complete. We sailed over Loch Katrine on a steamer and then took the coach again, through the Trosacha, a wild gorge of wondrous beauty. This last ride on the coach was 9½ miles. We spent two days on the lakes and a more enjoyable trip we never had. We became quite well acquainted with the different members of the party traveling at the same time. Among them was a party of five from London—two gentlemen with their wives and a gentleman who had lost his wife two years ago. They made every effort to render themselves agreeable and entertaining, and their society was most instructive as they were much better acquainted with the different objects of interest, having passed over the same route before. We all went to the same hotel at Edinburg and in the evening had music, vocal and instrumental, and several recitations. We separated with regret next day, exchanged cards and at the earnest solicitation of our London friends we promised to visit them at London on our return from the Continent.

To the Continent and Down the Rhine.

EIGHTH LETTER.

HOTEL DE FRANCE, BADEN-BADEN, July 14, 1883.

Our route from England to the Continent was by rail to Harwick, thence by steamer to Antwerp. We spent Sabbath and Monday in Antwerp and enjoyed every moment of our time. The Cathedral is the largest and most beautiful Gothic church in Belgium, and one of the most remarkable in the world. It was begun in the 13th century. The Cathedral contains several of Rubens' famous paintings, among them his "Descent from the Cross," considered his masterpiece. Here we also saw his "Elevation of the Cross," "Assumption of the Virgin," and "The Resurrection." Near the Cathedral is the church of St. Jacques. In the church of St. Jacques are also many good pictures, and in it is the tomb of the famous Rubens. We also spent several hours in the museum where there is a collection of 560 pictures, chiefly, too, of the old masters, such as Rubens, Van Dyck, Quentin Matsys. We also visited the Museum Plantin where there is a remarkable collection of antiquities of all kinds which I am sure would delight the eyes of Hon. John B. Linn. Here are very early manuscripts—specimens of the early printing, also the early printing presses, very old and beautiful bed-room furniture, mantles, and cabinets, etc., etc.

We attended the service of the English church and listened to a most excellent and impressive sermon. The Sabbath at Antwerp to Americans seems more like a holiday than anything else. The pavement in front of the beer saloons is packed with chairs and little tables, and the occupants of the chairs are all drinking beer. At many of these places even the street in front of the saloon is quite filled up with tables, chairs and beer-drinkers. The streets are quite as clean as the pavements, and, walking around, you are on the street quite as much as the pavement. Everything is so neat and clean, even more so than in England, and just as many beautiful flowers. The houses are antique in their appearance and quite picturesque.

Cologne is where we first saw the beautiful Rhine. We reached Cologne after dark and the first sight that greeted our eyes the next morning was the Rhine from our bed-room window. We carried a letter of introduction from Mr. Robert Valentine of Bellefonte to the United States Consul at Cologne. We presented our letter and were most politely received. Among other places we visited the church of St. Ursula, which is reported to hold the bones of 11,000 virgins, martyred by the Hans. The anatomic display is quite large.

We took one of the beautiful steamers of the Rhine, and spent two days on this wonderful river. The first day we went as far as Coblentz, the next day we rested at Coblentz to write letters to our friends at home and the day following we took the steamer for Mayence. At Cologne the Rhine is about 1,000 feet wide, but just above "fair Bingen" it is 2,000 feet wide. The beauties of the Rhine are simply indescribable—one must see it to appreciate it. The scenery is entirely different from anything we had yet seen. The vine-clad hills, the green mountains, the ruins of beautiful castles, the antique appearance of many of the towns, together with handsome churches and villas, and the ever swift flowing river, make up a panorama never to be forgotten.

We spent a most delightful day at Heidelberg, the home of Miss Ohnmacht before she came to Bellefonte. We will be able to tell her all about the Castle and the great "Heidelberg Tun," which holds 50,000 gallons of wine.

We are now at Baden-Baden, the famous and one of the most fashionable resorts in Europe. From here we go to Switzerland.

"The Pearl of the Alpine District."

NINTH LETTER.

HOTEL SUISSE, SCHWEISERHOF, INTERLAKEN, July 18, 1883.

We entered Switzerland by way of Bale, but did not stop till we came to Bern. We spent the Sabbath at Bern and attended English church service in the cathedral. The city is very pretty and perfectly clean, and has numerous fountains in the streets, and the fountains are generally adorned with statues. The most curious of these is the Ogre Fountain. There is a grotesque figure about to devour a child, while other children doomed to the same fate, protrude from his pockets and girdle, and betwixt is a troop of armed bears. This figure and the bears go through their performance ever hour, and you may imagine there is always an audience. The great attraction of Bern is the view it affords of the snow-clad Alps of the Bernese Oberland. We enjoyed this superb view at sun set from our windows at the hotel, and it was, indeed, sublime. Long after the rays of the sun have faded from the snowy peaks, the mountains begin to glow from their bases upwards and are beautiful beyond description. This is called the "after glow."

We left Bern on Monday, 16th, and reached Interlaken the same day. We still linger here, and are in no hurry to leave this "pearl of the Alpine district." Interlaken is visited by tourists from all parts of the world, and if pure air and the beauties of nature are to be found anywhere, they are here in perfection.

The situation of Interlaken is most picturesque and romantic. It is surrounded by two beautiful lakes—lake Brienzou on the east and lake Thun on the west. These two lakes are fed by the melting snow and ice of the glaciers. Directly on the north side of the town rises almost vertically a chain of mountains 7,000 feet above the level of the sea. On the south side Foulhorn 8,800 feet, Abendberg 7,385 feet, Nieseu 7,763, while the background between these is occupied by the majestic snowy peaks of the Jungfrou 13,671. We have this view from the balcony of our room and never tire looking at it. Not much wonder Interlaken is such a favorite town. The water is pure, the air tonic and invigorating and the temperature uniform. The absence of great heat in summer and the frequent showers give wonderful development to vegetation of all kinds. The meadows and hills are perfectly beautiful—so green and so fresh. The promenades are shaded with walnut trees of enormous size. These walnut trees are now over a hundred years old. yesterday we visited the Loutesbrunnen. For a short distance the road led through orchards and meadows but soon entered a narrow gorge, and on each side rise precipitouely the mountains already described. The Loutesbrunnen derives its name from Loutes Brunnen, nothing but springs. Numerous streams are constantly descending from the rocks. The principal and best known of these streams or brooks is the Staubbach. This brook descends from a projecting rock in a fall of 980 feet, and in its fearful leap the greater part of it is converted into spray. In the sunshine it resembles a transparent, silvery veil, wafted to and fro by the breeze. We enjoyed this scene. On the other side of this narrow gorge the Swiss peasantry were busy making hay, and to the left of us we had a splendid view of the Jungfrou covered with perpetual snow.

The Picnic.

The annual picnic of the Roman Catholic church, which has been a subject of pleasant expectation for some time past, was held on Wednesday and was a great success. About $500 was realized which will be very acceptable at this time as a new church edifice is to be erected in the immediate future. Two contests—one for a watch and another for a necklace—elicited considerable interest. The watch was secured by Andy Howley and the necklace by Miss Rosa Fox. About $300, we are told, was realized from these two contests. The festivities ceased promptly at 8 o'clock.

Boy Killed by a Falling Tree.

A sad accident occurred on Monday, July 30, about two miles below Boalsburg. John Woods was engaged in cutting a large tree, which fell unexpectedly, burying his brother-in-law, a boy named Jacob Kuhn, son of Mr. Joseph Kuhn, beneath it and injuring him so seriously that he died between 3 and 4 o'clock next morning. The boy was related to James and Robert Galbraith.

Drowned in Beer.

Concerning this Popular Beverage two Men Express their Minds.

"The fact is, sir, and you may stick a pin there, that the people of this country are likely to be drowned in a flood of lager beer," shouted an enthusiastic teetotaler the other day into the ear of your cornered correspondent. "That German drink has struck us hard. It is the second deluge."

"Yes, and the worst of this beer-drinking business is that it gets up kidney troubles, as a heavy wind raises the waves," added a city physician, who had a knowledge of the times and a tendency to metaphor. "The midnight 'schooner' leaves behind it a wake of furred tongues, headaches, torpid livers, nausea, and all that, and lays the foundation of Bright's Disease."

This melancholy fact accounts in part for the increasing sales of BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTER, which at once mitigates these symptoms. Price 25 cents. Ask your physician about it.

Local Department.

—The planing mill pond is full of water now.

—A tramp will take your trade dollar at par value.

—Huckleberries are four cents per quart at Howard.

—The M. E. Sunday school at Spring Mills has 127 attendants.

—Rev. Dr. Wagner, of Allentown, preached in the Reformed church on Sunday morning.

—There was a select company at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Amos Mullen on Friday evening.

—We are informed that the Howard Band will indulge in a picnic on Thursday, the 9th instant.

—One good cigar each week for a year costs more than a year's subscription to your county newspaper.

—Williamsport looks forward to an enjoyable time on the occasion of the National Guard encampment this week.

—Philipsburg has a dancing master who is really a "daisy," his name being George R. Daisy, and his home in Philadelphia.

—Mr. Thomas Fisher, of Huntingdon, father of Congressman Fisher of that place, died on Thursday and was buried at 10 o'clock Saturday morning.

—Harrison T. Beardsley, a prominent lawyer and business man of Lock Haven, died on Friday morning after a brief illness in the 67th year of his age.

—The Centre Hall Reporter says that if President Roberts and other officials of the Pennsylvania railroad will visit that vicinity they will learn something to their advantage.

—The contract for the erection of the Spring Mills bridge has been awarded to the Columbia Bridge Company, of Dayton, Ohio. This is as we predicted several days ago.

—Mr. Harry Landis is erecting two large double houses for rent on his property near his residence in the northwestern part of the borough. They will make good homes for four families and will be rented to employes of the nail works. Mr. William H. Noll, of Pleasant Gap, is the contractor.

—A telegram published in the city papers announcing a frightful railroad casualty near Denver, Colorado, destroying the lives of 150 G. A. R. excursionists, was, we are pleased to state, entirely without foundation, The excursion trained was delayed, but no accident occurred.

—The fleeting fancy of an idle hour has been dissipated so far as some of the writers for last week's Centre Democrat are concerned. One of them informed us to-day that the journal in question would no longer get the benefit of his versatile talents This is indeed a transient elevation to eminence.

—The high ground on the extreme end of Spring street affords a very fine view of the Milesburg gap and the view in all directions is exceedingly grand. The top of the elevation is also a natural level quite a distance and would make a delightful place for a residence. It is probable that Mr. Abram Valentine will erect a mansion there some day.

—For the benefit of those intending to visit Niagara Falls on the grand excursion which leaves here on the 21st, we would state that the $7.00 entertainment ticket, besides covering hotel and other expenses, includes hack fare to all points of interest at the falls. Such inducements were never before offered, and our people should not fail to take advantage of them.

—A "Harvest Home Basket Picnic" will be held in a beautiful grove near Stormstown, Saturday, August 11, 1883. All Sunday schools and everybody in reach are invited to come and enjoy a day's recreation appropriate to the closing of a bountiful harvest Meet in grove at 9.00 a. m. Order of day: Speeches, music, etc. A festival will be held in Burket's new building in Stormstown in the evening. By order of committee.

—The Mountain Union Sunday school in Gregg township will hold its annual picnic in John Grove's woods near the residence of Benjamin Ripka, on Saturday, August 25 The George Valley Union school, Locust Grove Evangelical school, Liberty Union school and Paradise Evangelic school have been invited to unite with them. An address by Rev. Benj. Hengst and music by the Millheim Cornet Band will contribute to the enjoyment of the occasion.

A Lecture to Centre Lodge No. 152, I. O. O. F.

On Friday Past Grand Master Geo. F. Borie, of Philadelphia, arrived in Bellefonte. He is one of the most prominent members of the I. O. O. F. in the State and his mission in this place was to instruct the members of Centre Lodge in regard to the principles, rules and mysteries of the order and to lecture to a public audience in the evening. The programme was faithfully carried out and on Saturday the Bellefonte people knew more about Odd Fellowship than they did the day before.

The apartments of Centre Lodge are fitted up in very fine style with a neat and appropriately designed carpet, upholstered furniture, handsome reading desks, pictures, etc. The largest room will accommodate three hundred persons, therefore the audience of not more than one hundred who assembled Friday evening seemed ridiculously small.

The speaker was introduced by 'Squire John I. Rankin who said that the story of Centre Lodge could easily be told. It was organized in 1846, has resources amounting to over $6,000 and for the purpose of learning more about the important society which they represent, Centre Lodge had invited Past Grand Master George F. Borie to address them and the public generally.

Mr. Borie is a gentleman of handsome presence and pleasant address. He said that it was surprising to him that an audience could be induced to listen to remarks on what was to them such an uninteresting subject as Odd Fellowship. The fact that it is a mysterious organization might of itself be an attraction. Many things are mysterious, even the grain of wheat with its process of germination and recreation. The difference between the church and the Odd Fellows society is that the first is spiritual and the second temporal. It was the mystery with which secret societies are surrounded that gave rise to the anti-Masonic party many years ago. He related that in a certain ancient town on the present line of the Pennsylvania railroad a committee was appointed at a public meeting for the purpose of investigating Odd Fellowship. Not one of them would serve, so a spinster in the back part of the hall arose and requested to be appointed a committee of one and she would report at the next meeting. The duty was delegated to her. Meanwhile two members of the order determined to play a practical joke on her. Procuring a goat they secured it in a side room and told the spinster that if she would visit the Lodge room she would discover the secrets of Odd Fellowship. She tripped lightly into the room, searched in every corner and beneath each table but found nothing until she opened the door of the small room, when the goat, hungered by a night's captivity without food, rushed at her, knocking her prostrate, and before the spinster could tell whether it was a ghost or a spirit from the infernal regions his goatship had descended the stairs and was far away. From this originated the belief that the mystery consisted of riding the goat, to which was added the work of climbing the greased pole and one woman was sure from marks which she noticed on her husband that to vary the exercises they sometimes sat down on red-hot gridirons. The secret of Odd Fellowship consists only in the means it opens by signs, words and cards of introduction which enable a member who may be in distress in any part of the world to obtain help. The speaker related an instance of this in the case of a member of a Philadelphia Lodge who visited Europe at the time of the financial panic in 1873. The Order also aids those who are not members as was demonstrated on the occasion of the great fire in Chicago when the 53 lodges in Cincinnati chartered a train and sent food and raiment which reached the sufferers before the last spark of the great conflagration was extinguished. Its object is to elevate the condition of man. One of its cardinal principles is brotherly love. In this it supplements the work of the church, and not until the principles of the Order obtain general prevalence will the millenium dawn. The speaker combated the objections which are sometimes urged against Odd Fellowship. If the argument that it is detrimental to the work of the church was true he for one would not be engaged in the work of extending its influence.

In speaking of the antiquity of Odd Fellowship he referred to the fact that Masonry had its origin in Solomon's temple when the workmen upon that edifice formed an alliance for a similar purpose. Odd Fellowship might date from Adam, as the first man on the globe was certainly an odd fellow. But, in reality, its origin was among the artisans of England in the eighteenth century. The Sisters of Rebecca is a branch of Odd Fellowship and consists of 30,000 mothers, wives and daughters of Odd Fellows, demonstrating that women can often keep a secret better than men. The speaker urged young men to unite with the order.

His speech was delivered in a quiet, conversational style and was as replete with Scripture doctrines and quotations as an ordinary sermon.

Telephone Extension.

At last the expectations of many months have been realized and the borough of Bellefonte has been placed in communication with far distant towns on the telephone. The new switch board, which is a remarkably handsome specimen of workmanship, has been put in operation and the wires connected via Tyrone with Clearfield, Philipsburg, Huntingdon and other places. On Thursday, Mr. A. B. Steele, who was then in Philipsburg, sent the first words over the wire that have passed between that place and Bellefonte in a business message to the Daily News. Still later a reporter of the News asked the operator if Huntingdon was also in connection. He was answered affirmatively, although it was stated that no effort had yet been made to communicate with the Huntingdon exchange; that the day was not favorable; nevertheless, the operator kindly volunteered to call Huntingdon. He succeeded immediately in opening communication and the reporter took his seat at the new switch board to indulge in the trifling nothings of a conversation which had naught but curiosity for its object. First inquiring about the weather a fair lady's voice returned answer that the weather in Huntingdon had been disagreeable in the morning, but was then pleasant. Next he inquired the distance between Bellefonte and Huntingdon. The lady did not know; but soon a gentleman's voice was heard replying that the distance was "some sixty" miles. The reporter said that he had never talked with anyone at so great a distance and asked what was the experience of the gentleman in Huntingdon. He replied that he had conversed at a distance of about ninety miles! Among other things which the reporter learned was that the Huntingdon Semi-Weekly News had just been published, that operation beginning at about one o'clock on Thursday afternoon. A few days after communication was opened via Lock Haven with Williamsport and on as far as Wilkesbarre. Then we suppose the line will be connected still further continually until communication will eventually be opened with Philadelphia and New York. Truly, the achievements of this remarkable age almost surpass belief.

A Pleasant Wedding on Thursday Evening.

Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock a very pleasant company of friends assembled at the home of Miss Emma Greth of this place, to witness the ceremony which united that estimable young lady in marriage with Mr. Charles Armstrong of Boiling Spring. The ceremony occurred promptly at the hour above mentioned and was exceedingly pleasant, Rev. Samuel E. Furst, the popular pastor of the Lutheran church, officiating in his most earnest and impressive manner. After the ceremony a fine collation was spread for the delectation of the numerous guests. We can personally testify to the toothsomeness of the cake as a generous assortment found its way to the REPUBLICAN office. After partaking freely of the refreshments the company examined the numerous beautiful presents which had been received.

Miss Greth, the bride, is a petite, graceful and remarkably attractive young lady, exceedingly agreeable and obliging as all can testify who have invoked her services at the Telephone Exchange where she has been engaged for several months past She is modest and unassuming in manner and will make a splendid wife for the very best specimen of the "lords of creation" that can be found. Mr. Armstrong, the happy groom, is spoken of in the highest terms by those who enjoy his acquaintance. He is an employe of Mann's Axe Works. Mr. and Mrs. Armstrong took the 8:55 train for Lock Haven, whence they returned the next evening to reside at Boiling Spring. We wish them a long and very happy married life.

—A distinguished company have been making the Bush House their home during the past few days. They consisted of Hon. Jno. G. Warwick and lady, Miss Lula Karthaus and Captain S. Williams all of Massillon, Ohio. Hon. Jno. G. Warwick is candidate for Lieutenant Governor on the Democratic State ticket of Ohio. We believe they visited the famous village of Snow Shoe Wednesday and are pleased with this part of the old Keystone.

Death of an Aged Citizen of Ferguson Township.

A correspondent writes: July 25 witnessed the closing scene of the life of Jacob Erb, the oldest citizen, save one, of Ferguson township. He was born in York county, this State, September 27, 1796, having attained the age of 86 years, 9 months and 27 days. His ancestors were among the first settlers of Pennsylvania and took an active part in the struggle for independence. In all the conflicts through which our nation has since passed the family have been represented. He had one son in the Mexican war, and he, his six sons and all his grandsons over 17 years of age were in the Rebellion. They then represented the states of Pennsylvania, Illinois, Wisconsin and California. He was married to Elizabeth Bomberger of Middletown, Dauphin county, who preceded him to a heavenly home some 17 years ago at the age of 65. He was the father of twelve children, eight of whom still survive to mourn his departure. One son is a worthy citizen of Ferguson township and occupies the homestead in which his father spent the last days of his life. Another son resides in California, one in Illinois, one in Wisconsin, one in Dauphin county, Penn'a., two in the western part of the State and one in College township, Centre county.

Mr. Erb was a citizen of Centre county fifty-two years. He was esteemed by all for his cheerful disposition, charity and hospitality, ever remembering the needy in tokens of kindness without regard to position or color. His unsettled accounts of over $3,000 upon his books, which recently perished in the flames, showed his disposition toward those who were in straightened circumstances. He and his wife were members of the Lutheran church, which they made their spiritual abode for some 45 years Mr. Erb had somewhat of a roving disposition, which in his younger days he gratified by travel, on one occasion going from his home in Pennsylvania to New Orleans on foot and in flat-boats; he also spent some time in foreign travel.

In his death the community loses a worthy and esteemed man. Peace to his ashes. X.

The New Town of "Vanderbilt."

Towns are springing up rapidly along the route of the Vanderbilt through line and the latest is the town of "Vanderbilt," located about seven miles from Philipsburg and but a short distance from Pealeton, on the line of railroad which is controlled by the great money magnate after whom it will probably be named. Ten gentlemen are engaged in this enterprise and although they have not yet secured one hundred acres, (the tract of land desired) they expect to secure that extent of territory during this week and will immediately erect a town on the site. The location is said to be much superior to that of Pealeton, and the town of "Vanderbilt is expected to become an important place quite soon. It may also be added that another name may eventually be decided on, but "Vanderbilt" is now the most important appellation under consideration.

Horse Stolen.

Officer Montgomery was notified on Thursday to be on the watch for a horse thief who has been operating in Blair county. On Wednesday night, August 2d, Mr. H. M. Gray, of Sinking Valley, Blair county, had a valuable mare stolen from the pasture. The animal is described as a bay mare, nine years old, weighs about eleven hundred pounds, and of cross disposition; bushy tail and mane and has scratches on left hind foot; white spot on back where saddle rubbed. A reward of $25 is offered for the recovery of the animal. Here is a chance for some of Bellefonte's detectives to earn enough to buy a fall suit.
